Candidate Sheatz Will Sweep the State.

AN ADDRESS BY REPUBLICAN CANDIDATE

HE SHATTERS THE ARGUMENT OF THE OPPOSITION.

TURNS TABLES ON HARMAN AND BERRY

Points Out the Failure of the Contention of the Opposition, Which He Denounces as a Reflection on Governor Stuart and Auditor General Young.

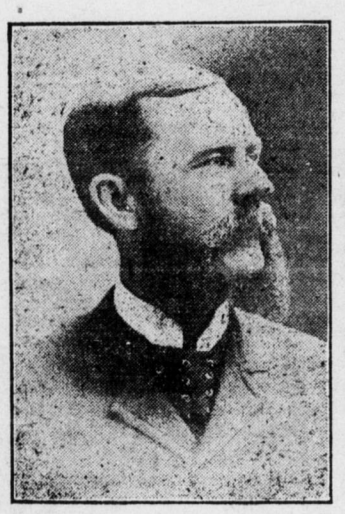
KANE, OCTOBER 21.—John O Sheatz was enthusiastically greeted by a large number of Republican party workers and voters of the lower part of McKean county at a mass meeting here last evening. The gathering was held in the Young Men's Christian Association hall, which has a seating capacity of about 600, but fully 800 were packed in the room. The audience included many veterans of the Civil war, and the chairman of the meeting, Postmaster Lucius Rogers is one of the leading Grand Army men in this vicinity.

In presenting Mr. Sheatz Chairman Rogers stigmatized as "villainous falsehoods" the assertions made in the interest of the Democratic candidate that Sheatz, as chairman of the Appropriations committee of the House at the last legislative session, had loaded the veterans' pension bill with a large appropriation so as to insure its veto by the Governor. He appealed to all the old soldiers to support Mr. Sheatz as a loyal Republican and the "sincere friend of the boys who wore the blue."

RECEIVED WITH ENTHUSIASM.

Mr. Sheatz was received with great applause when he faced the audience. He spoke in conversational style, relating the assurance that there was no bargaining on his part in connection with his nomination and that no one had any authority to make any pledge or promise to any man or any set of men which he would in any way recognize. "My only obligation, if I shall be elected," he said, "will be to the people of the Keystone State, and that obligation will be to give an honest, upright and efficient administration of the office."

In regard to the contention of State Treasurer Berry and Democratic Treasurer Candidate Harman that the latter should be elected because a Democrat should be on the Board of Public Grounds and Buildings at Harrisburg, Mr. Sheatz said that such an argument was a reflection on Governor Stuart and Auditor General Young, or both. "It implies," he said, "that either or both of these high officials are dishonest and it also suggests the idea that a board composed of three Republican members would not perform its duties properly. Such an insinuation is ab-absurd on its face. If a Democrat is needed to act as a check upon Governor Stuart and Auditor General Young, then the reverse would be true if these offices should happen to be occupied by Democrats, and I am positive that if there was a Democratic Governor and a Democratic Auditor General at Harrisburg neither State Treasurer Berry nor Candidate Harman would advocate the election of a Republicen to succeed Berry."



CONGRESSMAN CHARLES F. BARCLAY.

OTHER SPEECHES.

Speeches were also made by State Representatives E. E. Beidelman, of Dauphin county; Josiah Howard, of Cameron, and Congressman C. F. Barclay, of the Twenty-first district, comprising Cameron, Clearfield, Centre and McKean counties.

Mr. Sheatz and the other orators reached here last evening from Bradford. En route they stopped off at Smethport, county seat of McKean, and were entertained at dinner by a local committee.

Upon their arrival here they were taken in charge by a reception committee and escorted to the Griffin hotel, where the candidate held a reception and was serenaded by a band of music.

The Pennsy blacksmith shop at this place, was destroyed by fire last Thursday evening. The loss is not very great.

Adam Market's residence near Sizerville was destroyed by fire Friday morning. The furniture on first story was saved, but the vegetables in his cellar as well as the furniture in second story was destroyed. We hear he had $500 insurance.

According to its own honest confession the time has been when the Independent has been hard put to it to find any good to say for some of its own candidates. By the same token it has often been hard put to it to find anything to say against the Republican candidates. A case in point this year is Mr. John O. Sheatz, our nominee for State Treasurer.

WANTED.—Local representative for Emporium and vicinity to look after renewels and increase subscription list of a prominent monthly magazine, on a salary and commission basis. Experience desirable, but not necessary. Good oportunity for right person. Address Publisher, Box 69, Station O., New York. 36-2t.

The voters will remember Farmer Charles J. Howard, who is the Republican nominee for County Treasurer, when they cast their ballots. He will go under the wire a sure winner.

The young men are almost a unit for Chas. J. Howard for County Treasurer.

A Happy Band.

Mrs. Frank G. Judd chaperoned a party of twenty young ladies and gents to Driftwood last Saturday. It was a lively bunch of nice girls and good boys—full of fun but poor talkers, never anything to talk about.

Apology.

This issue of the Press is not up to our usual variety of news. Our foreman has been called away on account of death, while another employee has a crippled finger, thereby putting us "strictly up against it." We ask the indulgence of our readers and patrons for this issue. We hope to secure additional help in order to catch up with the great amount of work now in our jobbing department. Such is life.

Honor Roll.

Our Kids Downed.

Emporium Has Beens went to Austin last Friday morning to play the Austin Stars and accepted the lemon without a kick, the score standing 12 to 5 in favor of Austin. The following composed our club; Arverd Nystrum, Rob't Leutz, Chas. Robinson, Oscar Foster, Frank Egan, Clark Metzger, Ernest Fredette, Grover Hogan, Leo Ritchie, Vincent Ritchie, Mose Minard, Cap't. While en route for Austin the boys stopped at Sizerville, just in to time assist removing the furniture from Adam Market's residence, which was being destroyed by fire.

Our kids hope to get even with the Austin team next Saturday.

"Leah Kleschna."

"Leah Kleschna" has been acted over seven hundred times by Mrs. Fiske and has never received any unfavorable criticism. It took New York by storm and was welcomed with a chorus of praise that crowded the theatre for months. The same record has been made by the company that will appear in "Leah Kleschna" at the Emporium Opera House on Saturday evening, Oct. 26th, which is also under Harrison Grey Fisk's management, and is said everywhere to be of metropolitan excellence and to give the greatest satisfaction. Its appearance here is a big event and there will be a large demand for seats when the sale opens on Oct. 24th.

The Campaign Closes.

On Tuesday, Nov. 5, the electors of Cameron county will again declare themselves in favor of the Republican principles and its candidates. While this is an off year there will no doubt be a light vote, possibly not more than one thousand in this county. Only two condidates are in the field—Hon. John O. Sheatz, for State Treasurer, and Charles J. Howard for County Treasurer. Both are entitled to your votes and should have a rousing majority in this county. Mr. Sheatz accompanied by Hon. Charles F. Barclay and Hon. Josiah Howard last week made a tour of McKean county and addressed meetings at Bradford, Smethport, Mt. Jewitt and Kane. The fact was clearly demonstrated that the old soldiers take no stock in the wail from the Fishing Creek Confederacy candidate Harman. The old boys in blue will make an X in the Republican box.

DEATH'S DOINGS

PYE.

MRS. SARAH ELIZABETH PYE, aged 56 years, wife of John S. Pye, of East Allegheny Avenue, died at the family residence last Sunday after an illness of several months, from a complication of diseases. She was a great sufferer and sought relief from specialists without any benefit. Deceased leaves a husband and nine children. Her funeral took place from Presbyterian Church on Tuesday afternoon, Rev. Johnson officiating. The family has resided in Emporium for many years and have the sympathy of many friends.

REVELLA

Our townsman Mr. Thos. Gallagher, on Monday received a telegram conveying the sad intelligence that his sister, Mrs. Eliza Revella, of Philadelphia, passed away, after a long illness. Mrs. R. was a visitor in Emporium many times, in fact was here two weeks ago for a few days. Mr. Gallagher and niece, Miss Mazie, left for Philadelphia Monday night, to attend the funeral.

Cottage Hotel Leased.

County Treasurer John Cummings informs the PRESS that he has rented the Cottage Hotel—selling the furniture and stock—to Mr. Wm. Bente, of Pittsburg. Pittsburgers seem to be stuck on Emporium, this being the third landlord to locate here within a few months.

Happy Events.

One of the most pleasant events that ever occured among the colored society of Emporium, took place at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Dorsey, East Allegany avenue, last Friday evening, when Mrs. W. H. Brady assisted by Miss Annitta Dorsey, tendered them a surprise party in honor of the twenty-second year of their married life. The dining room was beautifully decorated in pink and white, long streamers of pink ribbon extending from the chandelier down to the table on all sides, forming a grand scene for all present. A center piece of flowers, autumn leaves and all the fruits of the season. An elaborate supper was served by Mrs. Brady, and while the happy family were seated around the table, Mrs. Brady read a poem of her own composition entitled "Twenty-two Years Ago To-Day." Mr. and Mrs. Dorsey were the recipients of many beautiful presents that will help them to remember the happy hours of that evening. They retired at a late hour, thanking God for the many blessings he had bestowed upon them during the years of their married life.

XXX

Teachers Institute.

The very successful session of Cameron County Teachers' Institute closes to-morrow morning. Each session has been one of interest to all who were fortunate enough to be present. The instructors—Dr. S. D. Fess, Dr. S. C Schumucher, Prof. H. F. Stauffer, Mr. W. H. Schoff, Dr. Henry R. Rose, Dr. Flickinger and Prof. C. E. Plasterer—stand with the most able ever enjoyed by our Institutes. Miss Collins chose carefully when she engaged such talent. The evening entertainments were very pleasing and attracted very large audiences.

The Monday evening entertainment at the Opera House was the Boston Concert Company. The reader, Miss Pooler, was without doubt the favorite with the immense audience. The first number entitled, "Miss. Civilization," by Richard Harding Davis, was enthusiastically applauded, as was also the other selections given. Miss Carmen MacIntyre, the violinist and sopranist, showed remarkable skill and talent in her recitals. Each number rendered was thoroughly enjoyed and highly appreciated. Mr. Leon C. Batchelder, Flute and Piccolo player, surprised the large audienee by his wonderful skill on these instruments. After each number he was recalled and responded to the hearty encores most graciously. He's a genuine treat. Miss Elsie Phelan, piano accompanist, filled in her part of the program, in a most pleasing manner. Her number, "Piano Solo and Songs" was heartily applauded and she acknowleged the encore in a gracious manner. Her easy matter of fact style captured her listeners.

Dr. S. D. Fess Tuesday evening, on "Humanity of Lincoln" was a treat. We have listened to some of the ablest platform orators but never was we so completely captured as we were Tuesday evening when Dr. Fess described Lincoln. Grand beyond description.

Wednesday evening, Dr. Henry R. Rose, gave illustrated lecture "Parsifal." It was fine and elevating.

This evening "The Royal Gypsy Concert Company" will close the evening session. The Company will no doubt have a crowded house.

Sad Message.

The PRESS' faithful foreman, Mr. O. Proudfoot, was called to Milesburg on Wednesday by a telegram informing him of the death of his sister, Mrs. Jas. Wallace, aged 24 years. Deceased had been ill for several months. She leaves a husband and two children to mourn her death.

Crushed to Death.

John Johnson, head sawyer on the night crew of the Goodyear Lumber Company saw mill at Austin, was crushed to death between two logs while at work in the mill at 4 o'clock Tuesday morning. He had been employed by the Goodyears for 25 years and was one of the most expert sawyers in this section, and was a most valued and highly respected citizen. He was a member of the Masonic fraternity. A widow and three children survive him.

Did you Ever Receive Higher Wages.

Snyder County "Tribune."

"The election in Snyder County this fall will be an unusually quiet one, owing to the fact that we have no local ticket and hence will have no excitement. It is highly important that every voter in Snyder County who believes in the success of Republican principles should attend the election, Tuesday, November 5th.

"Farmers, did you ever have better times? Laborers and mechanics did you ever receive higher wages than at present? If this is true, why change? You should remember your past experiences in the matter of a change in administrations. At this time, when the tariff question is being agitated, it is bad policy for Pennsylvania to halt or hesitate on the issues. Let us poll the full Republican vote in Snyder."

At Emporium Opera House.

Harrison Grey Fiske's "Leah Kleschna" company, that comes to the Emporium Opera House on Saturday evening, has been playing a number of towns hereabout and it is said every where to be the best attraction seen in years, if ever before. There is no misrepresentation about the performance, which is tremendously dramatic and splendidly acted. Harrison Grey Fiske, under whose management the play was produced when Mrs. Fiske acted it for six months in New York and for three seasons in other cities, is also the manager for this company. The quality of the performance of "Leah Kleschna" shows what a difference it makes when one of the big metropolitan managers sends a play out under his own name, he cannot afford to have his reputation suffer by an inferior attraction. The company is just as good as those seen in New York; and all the scenery, costumes and properties are carried. Mr. Fiske is the first manager to send companies to the one-night stands and if other managers would follow his example they would get just as crowded houses as in the big cities. No one who wants to see a realy first-class performance of a thrilling modern play should miss "Leah Kleschna." The sale of seats will open on Oct. 24.

Clothes.

In response to a petition from the sailors, the secretary of the navy has appointed a committee to recommend changes in the uniform of the men. The sailors say that the pancake cap which they are compelled to wear cannot be kept on the head in a high wind, and affords no protection to the eyes in a glaring sun. The blouse, with a wide collar tied by a long neckerchief, is also charged with trouble-breeding possibilities in the wind. The collar blows up about the head and face, and the neckerchief gets tangled in the hands, and is a general nuisance. No protest has been made against the flaring trousers, as the flare makes it easy to roll up the legs when the sailors scrub the decks. The men ask for a vizored cap and a coat. Whether their demands are granted now or not, some change in the sailor's uniform is inevitable, declares the Youth's Companion. A garment that interferes with a man's work has outlived its usefulness. There was a time when men wore silken hose, lace-ruffled shirts and flowing lace cuffs with silk or satin coats. One has only to imagine a man clad in that way walking the streets of a modern city or running a high-powered automobile to understand why silks and satins have gone out of fashion for men's garments. That laces and silks and satins are still woven and worn by women is the world's tribute of appreciation for woman's ornamental capabilities. Her usefulness is never doubted. Clothes also show the progress of democracy. It was the gentleman who wore laces and silks. The peasant dressed in woolens of sober colors. Class distinctions were forced upon the attention of the most careless observer of the passing throng. Nowadays it is impossible to distinguish between the rich and the poor as they walk the streets. It sometimes happens that the poor man dresses better than his employer, "that he may make a good impression"—a utilitarian reason for good clothes as truly as the demand for a vizored cap by the sailors is based on business reasons.

One of the great electric manufacturing companies reports gross earnings for the year covered by the statistics at over $33,000,000, with profits of $4,179,000. This is the electric age for sure, and the experience of this one concern is probably matched by that of others. The demand for electrical appliances in every form was never greater, nor is there any indication of subsidence. An interesting accompaniment of this report of earnings is the government statement of copper production, from which it appears that the output of the metal for 1906 was 906,591,000 pounds, or 18,000,000 pounds in excess of the amount in 1905. Production and consumption of copper are intimately related to electrical development, and this country is foremost in both respects.

Last year German yachts which came here to race for the Roosevelt cup were defeated. This year our boats contesting for the Emperor William cup at Kied, Germany, were badly beaten. Yacht-designers usually succeed best in building for home waters and for weather conditions to which they are habituated. These international races, however, are not without their usefulness. Yachting, a clean, beautiful sport, is of great value in its influence on the important science of ship-building.

That was a lovely story about the train wrecked near the circus grounds in a Pennsylvania town where one big elephant became a derrick and lifted debris off the injured while five others ran to the river and filled their trunks with water and extinguished the flames. If administration secret service agents can get the names of that press agent he will certainly get his.

And now we are told that men after they are 40 should not eat red meat. Still, it will be no rarity to see many who have passed Dr. Osler's age limit ordering rare roast beef with dish gravy, instead of calf meat or the steamed rooster that is masquerading as spring chicken.

TEN BILLIONS MORE

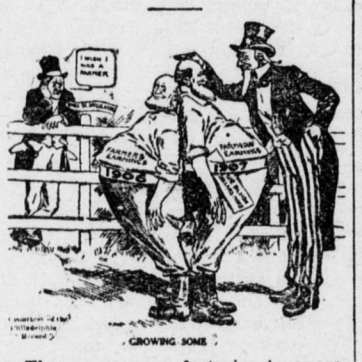
THE FARMER IS WORTH IN 1907 THAN HE WAS IN 1895.

Then He Was Getting Low Prices and Producing Less; Now Getting Top Prices—He Is Producing More and Making Money Faster Than Ever Before.

By the courtesy of the Philadelphia Record we are able to reproduce a strong cartoon, the original of which appeared in a recent issue of that newspaper. The picture has for its central thought the steadily increasing prosperity of the American farmer. In the foreground are two stalwart tillers of the soil standing back to back, while Uncle Sam is taking the measure of their respective statures. He finds that the farmer of 1907 is half a head taller than he of 1906, and the legend explains that 1907 has given the farmer in earnings "one billion dollars more" than in 1906. Leaning over the fence with wistful, envious expression is the Wall street speculator, his empty pockets turned inside out, and fervently exclaiming: "I wish I was a farmer!"

For this striking depiction of the splendid earnings of the American farmer, the Free-Trade Record is to be commended. We do not suppose that the intention was to suggest that the farmer has grown more and more stalwart, and that his earnings show

ONE BILLION DOLLARS MORE FOR THE FARMERS.



There are more factories in operation now than ever before. There are more mills running, more locomotives puffing and pulling the products of factories and mills. Everywhere there is a demand for labor. Farmers, don't you know that this is what has uplifted your market? The prosperity of the wage earners has brought about this unprecedented prosperity of the farmers. Republican legislation in congress has done this.—Southern American.

a billion dollars of increase in one year because of Protection. Yet the suggestion is there; you cannot escape it.

Doubtless the Record will scout the idea that protection has had anything to do with the farmer's prosperity, and will sneeringly ask, "What has Protection to do with big crops"

Let us see about that. It requires no strained argument to show that Protection may have a great deal to do with big crops.

Go back to 1893-1897. The farmer was getting 50 cents a bushel for his wheat and $3 apiece for his lambs. Today, after ten years of restored protection, the price of wheat has nearly doubled and the price of a spring lamb has more than doubled.

Protection has not increased the yield of wheat per acre, or the percentage of lambs available for the butcher's block, but it has induced the farmer to sow additional acres of wheat to buy more ewes from which to breed lambs.

It is estimated that farm land values and the gross values of farm products have increased at the rate of a billion dollars a year—fully $10,000,000,000—in the last ten years of adequate protection to American labor and industry.

Can't Be Taken Out of Politics.

It is all very well to say that the revision of the tariff, being strictly a problem of commercial science, ought to be taken out of politics. Undoubtedly; but how is it to be taken out of politics when for years the tariff has been, and next year is likely once more to be made a presidential issue? The ideal procedure would be through the creation of such a non-partisan body as the National Association of Manufacturers proposes, assuming, of course, its fidelity to the protective principle; but as things stand it is at least questionable whether the formation of a non-partisan tariff commission comes within the range of possibility, and it is not questionable at all that a Republican congress would refuse to participate in the formation of such a body. The day may come when the tariff will cease to be a political issue, just as the gold standard has ceased to be such an issue already, but that day has not come yet, nor is it yet in sight.

Fortunately, there is no immediate hurry about the tariff. The country is doing very nicely. It is enjoying all the prosperity it could expect or desire. Indeed, its only complaint is that there is more business to be done than there are facilities in the way of currency and transportation for doing it, so that the community is suffering from what the doctors call a plethora. This is an inconvenience, but, on the whole, the situation is one to which the remark applies that it is generally prudent to let well enough alone.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

MODERN TARIFF PLATFORM.

The Manufacturers Club of Philadelphia Want to "Be Shown."

Possibly the tariff plank in the Republican platform of 1908 was written when the following was adopted by the Manufacturers' club of Philadelphia on Monday evening, September 9, 1907:

That we are opposed to any disturbance of the present tariff law at the coming session of congress and until conditions have so changed that the public interest demands a change in rates of duty, and until it can be shown that less injury will result than good be accomplished by such action.

Is there a safer, sounder, more sensible tariff declaration than this upon which the party of protection could go before the people in next year's presidential and congress elections? Could the national convention do better than to adopt it without the change of a word or a comma?

This is practically the platform of 1904, except that it more specifically states the common-sense proposition that action looking toward a disturbance of the tariff and of business conditions shall not be permitted "until it can be shown that less injury will result than good be accomplished by such action."

Who will say no to this? What reasonable, prudent, patriotic citizen will dispute that before the tariff is disturbed evils calling for remedy must be plainly shown to be of greater consequence than the evils certain to result from such disturbance?

Upon such a platform the Republican party can without question successfully appeal to the country for a renewed expression of confidence. It would be a practical guaranty that the best judgment, the best brain, the best wisdom of a great party are to rule in a matter which so vitally concerns the business, the industry, the wage-earning and the wage-paying of the nation as a whole. It would be a notice that protection remains "a cardinal principle" of the party of protection, and that neither the avowed enemies nor the false friends of protection will be allowed to subvert protection and destroy prosperity.

For the sake of the greatest good of the greatest number it is earnestly to be hoped that the tariff resolution of the Manufacturers' club of Philadelphia will be the tariff plank of the National Republican convention of 1908.

HARD ON FREE-TRADERS.

Trust Development in a Country With No Tariff.

One of the foulest blows ever delivered into the pit of the stomach of American free-traders is the formation of a British steel trust. This enormous combination now makes no secret of the fact that it is formed to control the iron and steel market of Great Britain, not to speak of the kindred industries dependent upon the material supplied by the trust.

Over here in the United States our Free-Traders have preached the gospel, until they almost believed it themselves, that the only thing that made or could make American trusts was the wicked protective tariff. There are trusts in Germany, under protection, and there are trusts in Great Britain, under free-trade, for trusts are made by entering into combination to regulate production, distribution, prices and everything that is in the control of those who produce the articles and get together in such a conspiracy. In fact, the only thing that enables an independent producer here to stay in existence is the tariff, which saves him from fighting more than one enemy the, home trust. But our free-traders have always had it that the American tariff was solely responsible for the American trusts, and that but for the tariff they would have to go out of business. And to prove the argument they pointed to Great Britain, where there were "gentlemen's agreements," but no open trust.

Perhaps now the free-traders may be willing to admit that the way to end a trust is not to end the whole home industry by giving it to some foreign nation. Perhaps they will admit it, perhaps not, for the thing they most believe in is the thing they don't see; and the thing they deny with their loudest voices is the thing that is plain before their eyes.—Kewanee (Ill.) The Duty on Hides.

In replying to the assertion of the Waterville Sentinel that the tariff on hides adds ten cents to the price of every pair of shoes and costs the people of Maine $140,000 a year more than under the Wilson law, the Kennebec Journal makes the excellent point that shoes are as cheap to-day as they were in the dismal period of 1893-1897. The Journal might have gone farther and shown that the tariff affects only the heavier hides used in making sole leather, and that the duty of 15 per cent. cannot possibly increase the cost more than two cents a pair. This cost comes out of the manufacturer's profit and not out of the consumer's pocket. Yet a large number of shoe manufacturers have become enormously rich, and are getting richer very fast in spite of that 15 per cent. duty on hides. Rightly the Journal contends that this duty should be retained because the farmers want it. Abolish the duty on what the farmers have to sell and the farmers would very quickly demand the removal of duties on what they have to buy. That would mean the end of all protective duties. Though they apparently have not sense enough to see it, those who urge the removal of the duty on farm products practically advocate free-trade. That is the size of it.

CHURCH TREASURES STOLEN

WORKS OF ART WORTH $1,600,000 WERE TAKEN BY ONE MAN.

Robberies of French Churches in the Last Few Years Were Numerous and Total an Enormous Sum

Paris. — Marx Brothers, antiquaries, who sold the statue of St. Catherine to the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York, last May, while they are unable to account for the exact origin of the statue, are quite certain that it is not a product of the recent church robberies in France.

M. Marx said Wednesday that the firm had acquired the statue in August, 1906, from one of the best known dealers in Paris, who had purchased it from another dealer equally reputable. For the present he was not at liberty to give the names of these dealers, but he considered the character of the houses a sufficient guarantee that the statue had not been stolen.

Mr. Marx said the dispatches from New York had contained the first intimation that the statue came from the church of St. Etienne. He scouted the idea that honorable antiquaries were in any way involved with Antoine Thomas, the chief operator in the recent robberies, although he said it was always possible that they might be the victims of misrepresentation.

M. Marx pointed out that all religious works of art, crosses, statues, ivories, reliquaries, etc., now in the museums and galleries throughout the world came originally from churches as surely as apples came from apple trees, but the history of most of them is unknown. The French revolution accounted for the disappearance of many such objects from the churches, but previous to and since the revolution, in Italy and other countries as well as in France, church treasures had been freely sold by priests, who often attached little value to them.

"Moreover," M. Marx went on, "fifty years ago treasures of the fourteenth and fifteenth centuries were drifting about Europe and could be purchased for a song. It is only in the last 15 or 20 years that their value as art treasures has been appreciated and their systematic collection begun. Since then the values have increased a hundredfold."

The product of Thomas' known thefts, according to the public prosecutor of Limoges, already is estimated at $1,600,000. At Clermont-Ferrand Tuesday night the police discovered in a cellar leased by Thomas a bust of St. Baudine, stolen from the church of St. Nectaire and valued at $200,000.

TWO RECORDS WERE LOWERED.

Trotters at Allentown, Pa., Half-Mile Track Make New Marks for Speed.

Allentown, Pa. — Two world's records were broken Wednesday afternoon on the Allentown fair ground track before 10,000 persons.

In the match race for $5,000 between Sweet Marie and Major Delmar, best two in three heats, the mare won in straight heats and incidentally broke the half-mile track world's record for a regular one-mile race. Her best time was 2:08, made in the second heat, beating the former record of 2:09¾ held by Dandy Jim. Sweet Marie's time in the first heat was 2:10.

The other record was made by George G., this season's unbeaten trotter, which, paced by a runner, broke the world's half-mile track record for an exhibition mile. His time was 2:06¾. The former record was 2:07, made by Sweet Marie on the Allentown track, September 20, this year.

In the match race Sweet Marie was very steady, while Major Delmar had trouble in making the turns. The latter was swept off his feet in making the first turn in the first heat, losing three lengths, which he nearly made up to the wire, being a neck behind the winner. In the second heat Alta McDonald had pushed the gelding ahead in the first eighth and gained two lengths to the quarter. At the half they were neck and neck. Nearing the three-quarters pole Major Delmar broke and Sweet Marie won with ease in 2:08.

STOCK MARKET IN A PANIC.

Failure of a Firm of New York Brokers Caused a Break in Prices.

New York City.—Trading in both the New York stock exchange and the curb stock market was in a turmoil Wednesday as a result of excited movements and violent declines in the price of United Copper stock in the latter market. The suspension of the firm of Gross & Kleeberg, members of the New York stock exchange, contributed materially, if it was not the chief cause, of the declines in both markets. This firm has been trading actively in United Copper stock and it was reported that they were members of a pool formed to support the price of the stock. Apparently there was a break in this pool Tuesday, as the result of which the common stock broke from $59 to $36 per share. Yesterday it went down to $15.

The preferred stock which had been quoted last at $74, reached the low point of $24 for the the day. Trading in these stocks was confined to the curb market.

Evidences of active liquidation in New York stock exchange apeared in the closing hour of the market and was attributed to heavy selling by interests which had suffered in the copper movement in the curb market. Active stocks declined at the rate of a point per sale until net losses ranged from 2½ to 7½ points.

HOFF CONQUERS CONSUMPTION.

Home Treatment Advocated Instead of Banishment.

Instead of binding heavier burdens on the consumptive and sufferer from asthma by banishment to the West it has been proven that the home treatment with the simplest medications brings about the best results.

The American Bureau is distributing gratuitously a valuable treatise on asthma and consumption which contains rules and regulations relative to diet, exercise, hygiene and medicinal treatment for the cure of these maladies. It also points out ways and means by which it may be safe to come in contact with the consumptive patient.

The establishment of the American Bureau is the result of the wonderful achievements of Prof. Hoff, of the faculty of the University of Vienna, whose success in the treatment of consumption, asthma and catarrh is little less than marvelous. His theories are to be promulgated in the hopes of stamping the Great White Plague from the continent.

The pith of this little book has been copied by local boards of health, and by addressing the American Bureau, No. 49 Third avenue, New York City, the book will be sent free to any sufferer from asthma or consumption.

Bible Names for Colts.

A hostler from the Blue Grass has just found employment in one of the stables of a New York man. His darky dialect is so quaint and his stories of "Ole Kaintuck" so unique no member of the household misses an opportunity to speak to him and have him say a word.

His employer said to him a few days ago: "I suppose your master down south had a good many horses?"

"Dat we did, sah, dat we did! And my ole master had 'em all name Bible names. Faith, Hope and Charity, Bustle, Stays and Crinoline, was all one Spring's colts!"

Saw It Come Out of a Cow.

A little city boy and his sister Dorothy were taken to the country for the first time.

The two children were happy as the day was long. In the late afternoon they watched the cows come home, heard with delight the tinkling cow-bells, and the little boy even went in the barns to see the milking done.

At supper, just as Dorothy was lifting her glass to her rosy lips, the boy cried out:

"Oh, Dorothy, don't! You mustn't drink that milk. It's not fit to drink. It came out of a cow. I saw it!"

Not a Hit as an Improviser.

"Did you ever hear anybody improvise?" he asked.

"No," said she, and he sat down to the piano and improvised for about an hour and a half. At the end of that time he turned around, his face full of expression, and said to her:

"What do you think of it?"

"Lovely!" she exclaimed. "Beautiful! I never heard anything like it!"

But this is what she said to the hallboy when he was gone:

"If that long, lank lunatic who improvises asks for me again, you tell him I am out."

A Young Composer.

Rachel, aged 12, wrote an composition on wild flowers in which she praised the arbutus, the liverwort, the spring beauty, the blood root, and all of the other blossoms of dell and dale. But she wrote on both sides of her sheet of paper, and when she asked her father, who was an editor, to publish her article, he called her attention to that fact.

"You've written on both sides of your paper," said he.

"Well," was the reply, "and don't you print on both sides of yours?"

Reason This Out.

An English quarryman was charged with assaulting one of his mates, and when the case was carried into court, an eyewitness of the occurrence gave some curious evidence.

"He tuk a pick an' he tuk a pick," the witness began, "an' he hit him wid his pick, an' he hit him wid his pick; an' if he'd hit him wid his as hard as he hit him wid his, he'd have near killed him, and not him him."

Bush Over Buried Treasure.

There is a tradition in Germany that it was customary in the Middle Ages to put an elderberry plant over buried treasure. A farmer at Oelsdorf while plowing close to such a bush unearthed a vessel containing 2,300 silver coins of the eleventh century.

There is a place and means for every man alive.—Shakespeare.

QUALITIES OF WIT AND HUMOR.

Alike, Yet in Many Ways Fundamentally Different.

Wit and humor are such elemental fundamental things that it has always been found difficult to analyze them, says a writer in The Atlantic. Upon some points, however, those who have essayed this puzzling task agree, for they all hold that wit is an intellectual, humor an emotional, quality; that wit is a perception of resemblance, and humor a perception of contrast, of discrepancy, of incongruity. The incongruity is that which arises between the ideal and the fact, between theory and practice, between promise and performance; and perhaps it might be added that it is always or almost always a moral incongruity. In the case both of wit and humor there is also a pleasurable surprise, a gentle shock, which accompanies our perception of the hitherto unsuspected resemblance or incongruity. A New England farmer was once describing in the presence of a very humane person the great age and debility of a horse that he formerly owned and used. "You ought to have killed him," interrupted the humane person indignantly. "Well," drawled the farmer "we did —almost."

TEN YEARS OF PAIN.

Unable to Do Even Housework Because of Kidney Troubles.

Mrs. Margaret Emmerich, of Clinton St., Napoleon, O., says: "For fifteen years I was a great sufferer from kidney troubles. My back pained me terribly. Every turn or move caused sharp, shooting pains. My eyesight was poor, dark spots appeared before me, and I had dizzy spells. For ten years I could not do housework, and for two years did not get out of the house. The Kidney secretions were irregular, and doctors were not helping me. Doan's Kidney Pills brought me quick relief, and finally cured me. They saved my life."

THE KISS IN JAPAN.

One Western Idea That Is Popular with Eastern Maidens.

She was a Japanese college student, little and thin, but very graceful in her Paris gown.

"The kiss," she said, blushing faintly, "was unknown in Japan 50 years ago. Now, among the aristocracy, it is becoming quite renowned.

"Yet it comes as a great shock at first. It is so different, you know, from anything in a Japanese girl's experience. I have known maidens who fainted at a first kiss that was perhaps too warmly tendered. Yet these very maids became afterward ardent advocates of the new western embrace.

"Frankly, I like the kiss myself. Its stimulus, and the feeling, as of red satin, when mouth touches mouth with a warm, soft shock—yes, frankly, I like the kiss, and I find it extremely difficult to deny an eager young man so innocent and so delightlightful an embrace.

Willing Hands.

There is a good story going the rounds in Pittsburg of a young man, formerly a stock-broker, who dropped many thousands in speculation during the early spring.

One night, shortly after going to bed, the Pittsburger was awakened by strange signs. At his first motion to jump up he was greeted by a hoarse voice. "If you stir, you're a dead man!" it said "I'm looking for money."

"In that case," pleasantly answered the erstwhile speculator, "kindly allow me to arise and strike a light. I shall deem it a favor to be permitted to assist in the search."—Harper's Weekly.

Mr. Malaprop Just Home from Rome.

A regular Mr. Malaprop recently came home from his first visit to Europe. He grew enthusiastic about Rome.

"It was fine," he declared, "to go into them churches over there and see the old tombs—cigarrophagusses, they call 'em. And then the Sixteen chapel is great, and as for the Vaccination, where the pope lives, well!"

But his stock of compliments give out when he got to the subject of beggars.

"I always refused them pennies," he said, "because, you see, I didn't want to set a bad prestige!"

A BLACK THURSDAY FOR FINANCIERS

BANK FAILURES FOLLOW BREAK IN COPPER STOCKS.

DIVIDENDS ARE REDUCED.

A Bank in Hamburg, Germany, Fails for $7,000,000 and the Heinzes are Found to be in a Bad Way.

New York City. — Sensations followed each other in rapid succession in the financial district Thursday as the result of the collapse of the projected corner in United Copper and the suspension of a prominent brokerage firm Wednesday.

The firm of Otto Heinze & Co. was suspended on the stock exchange.

F. Augustus Heinze, the Butte copper magnate, resigned the presidency of the Mercantile National Bank of New York.

The Amalgamated Copper Co. at its directors' meeting cut its quarterly dividend from 2 per cent. to 1 per cent.

The directors of the Boston and Montana Copper Co. declared a quarterly dividend of $6 in place of a former dividend of $12.

The failure of Haller, Soehle & Co., prominent bankers of Hamburg, Germany, with liabilities that may reach $7,500,000, was announced.

The State Savings Bank, of Butte, Mont., of which the Heinzes are the principal stockholders, suspended.

The suspension of Otto Heinze & Co., of which firm Max M. Schultze is the stock exchange member, was based on a complaint to the exchange made by Gross & Kleeberg, the stock exchange firm which failed Wednesday. In a communication to the president of the stock exchange, this firm charged Otto Heinze & Co. with refusing to accept 3,202 shares of United Copper said to have been bought on the order of the Heinze firm. This action, Gross & Kleeberg state, was responsible for their failure. Attorneys for this firm stated that the amount owing to the firm by the Heinze firm aggregates $600,000.

The Heinze firm announced that it is perfectly solvent and that all its legal obligations will be met. The attorneys say that the suspension by the stock exchange was accepted by the firm in order to give the latter an opportunity to sift its legal obligations from numerous claims which have been made against it and which it is alleged are not legal obligations.

Hamburg, Germany.—The old private banking firm of Haller, Soehle & Co. failed Thursday. The liabilities of the firm are variously stated and it was estimated early in the day that they were in the neighborhood of $5,000,000, but the Hamburger Nachrichten says it is informed by a banker who is in a position to know the facts that the liabilities will reach $7,500,000.

A REGULAR WIRELESS SERVICE.

It Is Now in Operation, Transmitting Messages Across the Atlantic.

Glace Bay, N. S. — The inauguration of a regular trans-Atlantic wireless service was accomplished Thursday by William Marconi and his assistants. Mr. Marconi stated last night that more than 5,000 words had been transmitted between the station at Port Morien, six miles from here, and the Irish station.

Invitations to a large number of guests were issued for 2 o'clock in the afternoon, but the world-wide interest in the undertaking brought a flood of messages in the early morning, and the service was opened shortly after daylight. Among those present at the opening of the new service were representatives of a score of British and American newspapers.

The station is the property of the Canadian Marconi Co. and is estimated to have cost $100,000, independent of expenditures for experimenting incidental to the first attempts to make practical use of a new invention. There are 24 pine masts, 180 feet high, arranged in a circle of 3,000 feet diameter. The masts are wired and connected with the four towers forming the center of the circle. The towers are wooden, 215 feet high and surmounted by masts 50 feet in height.

A $2,000,000 BANK FAILURE.

One of the Wealthiest Citizens of Texas Is Compelled to Assign.

Houston, Texas. — T. W. House, private banker, on Thursday filed a general assignment under the state law. W. B. Chew, W. D. Cleveland and J. S. Rice were named as assignees. They gave bonds in the sum of $100,000 before Judge Kittrell. It is stated that resources are sufficient to pay creditors 100 cents on the dollar.

Inability to realize on securities not readily convertible into cash is the only cause given for the assignment. The House bank was established in 1838 by the father of the present banker. The bank was not incorporated and has never made a statement of its affairs. House has enormous holdings of land and other investments in many portions of Texas and has been rated as one of the state's wealthiest citizens. It is said that the bank has deposits of more than $2,000,000.

THE MAGILLS ARE ACQUITTED

SENSATIONAL MURDER TRIAL AT DECATUR, ILL., IS ENDED.

He Said the State Had Failed to Prove that the Defendants Were Guilty of the Alleged Crime.

Decatur, Ill. — Acting under instructions from Judge Cochran, a jury last night acquitted Frederick Magill and his wife, Faye Graham Magill, of the charge of murdering Magill's first wife. The judge said that the state had failed to prove the charges. The verdict was greeted with cheers, despite the efforts of the court to maintain order.

Mrs. Pet Magill was found dead in bed at her home in Clinton, Ill., on May 31. She had died of chloroform asphyxiation. Notes pinned to the bed by Mrs. Magill asserted that she had taken her life because of constant indignities thrust on her by her husband's relatives.

The coroner returned a verdict of suicide and little was thought of the case until five weeks later when Magill, who was a bank cashier, and Miss Faye Graham, a close friend of Magill's daughter, were married in Denver. The quick marriage caused unfavorable comment in Clinton and it was suggested that Magill and Miss Graham had forced Mrs. Magill to take her life by their actions and comments, so that they might marry.

Magill and his new wife were arrested at San Diego, Cal., after their marriage, and brought back for trial. The state charged that the notes found in Mrs. Pet Magill's bed were forged and that if Magill and Faye Graham did not kill her they drove her to suicidal despondency by their actions toward each other. No proof was produced to prove the charges, and the final plea of the prosecuting attorney was that Magill knew his wife was suicidally despondent and did not use proper means to prevent the self-murder.

A LONG VOYAGE IN A BALLOON.

Two Army Officers Travel from St. Louis Into West Virginia.

St. Louis, Mo.—Swinging through the air at a speed estimated at 22 miles an hour, the United States signal corps balloon No. 10, in which aeronauts J. C. McCoy and Capt. Charles DeF. Chandler, of the signal corps, ascended at St. Louis Thursday evening, passed over Illinois and Indiana Thursday night and across Ohio Friday and last night probably landed in the vicinity of Point Pleasant, W. Va. The distance covered is approximately 500 miles, and the length of the voyage won for the aeronauts the Lahm cup.

The Lahm cup was instituted by the Aero Club of America soon after the international races at Paris in 1906, when Frank P. Lahm won the James Gordon Bennett cup for the Aero Club of America. So joyful were the members of the club at the victory that the cup was named for the pilot of the balloon "United States," and it was put up by the club to be won by the aeronaut who traveled more than 402 miles, the distance traveled by the "United States" in the Paris races, provided the start was made from American soil. Lieut. Lahm never held the cup and this was the first time it was ever won.

The balloon, Stevens No. 21, in which Alan R. Hawley and Augustus Post ascended at 6:10 o'clock Thursday evening, landed Friday 16 miles from Indianapolis and about 225 miles on a straight line from St. Louis.

The balloon manned by Aeronauts Oscar Erbsloeh and Hans Heidemann, who compose one of the German teams entered in the international cup race, landed at Red Bud, Ill., 30 miles southeast of here at 3:32 p. m. Friday. The balloon started from here at 1:05 p. m. for a trial flight.

DUN'S TRADE REVIEW.

Retail Business Broadens and Collections Improve.

New York.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says:

Autumn retail trade broadens under the stimulating influence of favorable weather, and collections also improve. While reports are almost unanimous regarding the satisfactory volume of retail distribution of seasonable goods, in other sections of commercial and industrial activity there is some irregularity, attributed in most cases to high rates for money, which induces conservatism in preparations for the future. Yet leading cities at the west and south find no restriction in supplementary orders at wholesale, and jobbers report that new lines for spring are well received.

Copper declined still lower, but prices were steady in the leading metal industry.

Plates and structural materials are the strongest departments of the finished steel market, and bar mills have enough business to operate during the balance of the year, even if no more orders are received. Consumers feel sanguine that a waiting policy will bring better terms. A fair demand is noted for prompt shipment of merchant steel, very good news being received from makers of shafting.

In the textile industries the event of the week was the cut in prices by a Chicago house. There was no evidence of weakness in cotton goods prior to that reduction, which in some lines amounted to 20 per cent., and eastern jobbers did not follow the western movement.

Thomas A Edison, the great American nventor, says, "Fully eighty per cent. of the illness of mankind comes from eating improper food or too much food, people are inclined to over-indulge themselves." This is where indigestion finds its beginning in nearly all cases. The stomach can do just so much work and no more, and when you overload it, or when you eat the wrong kind of food, the digestive organs cannot possibly do the work demanded of them. It is at such times that the stomach needs help; it demands help, and warns you by headaches, belching, sour stomach, nausea and indigestion. You should attend to this at once by taking something that will actually do the work for the stomach. Kodol will do this. It is a combination of natural digestants and vegetable acids and contains the same juices found in a healthy stomach. It is pleasant to take. It digests what you eat. Sold by R. C. Dodson.

Hard Times in Kansas.

The old days of grasshoppers and drouth are almost forgotten in the prosperous Kansas of to-day, although a citizen of Codell, Earl Shamburg, has not yet forgotten a hard time he encountered. It took less than one bottle to completely cure me" The safest and most reliable cough and cold cure and lung and throat healer ever discovered. Guaranteed at all drug stores. 50c and $1.00. Guaranteed also for stomach, liver and kidney troubles, by all Druggists. 50c.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

[From our Regular Correspondent.]

Washington, Oct. 19th, 1907.

What is regarded in Washington as the finest bargain offered to New York bankers in recent years will be brought by Senor Federico Volasques, Minister of finance for San-Domingo, who has sailed for New York to float the long pending Dominican loan of $20,000,000, which is to be secured by a bond issue bearing five per cent interest, practically guaranteed by the United States government, and, a ide from the fact that they will be subject to taxation and that they cannot be deposited by national banks as security for governments deposit or for circulation, are pronounced by the few financiers who have investigated the subject as good as United States bonds. Officers of the United States government will continue to collect the Dominican customs under the terms of the treaty ratified last session, and wsll pay into the hands of the trustees, who will pay the interest and accumulate the sinking fund, $1,200-000 a year; the remainder of the custom receipts, after the cost of collection shall have been deducted, to be covered into the Dominican treasury. The bonds must be sold at 96, will run for forty years and bear interest at 5 per cent, and may be redeemed at the end of ten years at 102½. $3,300,000 is already deposited toward the sinking fund, in the National City Bank of New York, drawing interest at 2½ per cent.

The control of customs houses in Santo Domingo by the United States has prevented all revolutions, as was predicted by the late Secretary Hay, as the customs receipts constituted the only incentive to revolution, and thus the permanent tranquility of the Dominican Government is insured. The loan about to be floated will pay off all foreign creditors, obviating all danger of interference from other governments.

On the completion of the new office building for members of the House of representatives, an electric railway will be installed, connecting the lobby of the new building with the House and a similar tramway will connect the new Senate office building with the Senate. It is now suggested that still further passenger service be established by the construction of a line which will connect these two links and thus facilitate passage between the House and the Senate, and every one who has had to walk the nearly seven hundred feet between the two chambers, several times in a day, will appreciate the desirability of such a line. It is claimed that with an electric railway traveling continuously from the House to the Senate office buildings and stopping under the respective chambers, the greatest saving of time and effort would be accomplished.

The agitation against the destruction of the historic Crittenden oak and other trees in the Botanic Gardens has been so great that Gen. Oliver, Acting Secretary of War, has cabled Secretary Taft in the Phillipines for authority to act in the matter. Gen. Oliver who is a member of the Grant Memorial Commission, telegraphed to Gen. Dodge, chairman of the commission, to come to Washington to consider the matter, but Gen. Dodge replied that he could not leave his home at this time; hence the cable to Secretary Taft, who is also a member of the commision, and ex-official chairman. Gen: Oliver believes that the commission is the only body which has authority to act in the matter, but does not care to assume the sole responsibility by taking action without first hearing from some other member of the commission.

A very clever dispatch, published recently in a New York paper, has been the cause of no little excitement in administration circles, where it is felt that the freedom of the press his transgressed all patriotism and even decency in this case. The dispatch is so diabolically worded that no statement is susceptible of flat denial, and in it the President is made to appear to seek to menace Japan in ordering the battleship fleet to the Pacific coast. The dispatch goes to the length of implying that President Roosevelt will follow this step by precipitating hostilities between the two countries. It is superflous to say that the paper which carries this tale is antagonistic to Mr. Roosevelt and his progressiv epolicies, and seeks in this way to mislead its readers and to injure the President. The fact that the newspaper itself is far too intelligent to believe the nonsense it seeks to palm off on its readers as fact, renders such an act all the more culpable in its audacity, and has excited no little comment in official circles.

Rheumatism

I have found a tried and tested cure for Rheumatism! Not a remedy that will straighten the distorted limbs of chronic cripples, nor turn bony growths back to flesh again. That is impossible. But I can now surely kill the pains and pangs of this deplorable disease.

In Germany—with a Chemist in the City of Darmstadt—I found the last ingredient with which Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Remedy was made a perfected, dependable prescription. Without that last ingredient, I successfully treated many, many cases of Rheumatism; but now, at last, it uniformly cures all curable cases of this heretofore much dreaded disease. Those sand-like granular wastes, found in Rheumatic Blood, seem to dissolve and pass away under the action of this remedy as freely as does sugar when added to pure water. And then, when dissolved, these poisonous wastes freely pass from the system, and the cause of Rheumatism is gone forever. There is now no real need—no actual excuse to suffer longer without help. We sell, and in confidence recommend Arbor Day in Ireland.

Ireland is trying to re-establish its claim to be known as the "Island of Woods." It is interesting to known that an American importation, "Arbor Day." is being use of largely in furthing the ends of forestry.

Since Arbor Day started in Nebraska thirty-five years aog its observance has spread all over the United States. The tangible result in this country has been the planting of over six hundred million trees, for the most part by individual school children, besides the interest aroused in animate and inanimate nature and in forestry. In Ireland a similar movement is now fairly launched and is rapldly spreading throughout the country. The time set for planting trees is in the fall, instead of the spring, as in most American States, viz: the week commencing October 29th of each year.

Last year a circular was issued by the Irish Forestry Society to all the bishops, clergy, and public bodies urging them to organize an Arbor Day in the various districts. A hearty response was received, and the support came from all sections of the community, from peers, peasants, clergy, and artisans, not omitting the school children.

WHAT THE KIDNEYS DO.

Their Unceasing Work Keeps Us Strong and Healthy.

All the blood in the body passes through the kidneys once every three minutes. The kidneys filter the blood. They work night and day. Whes healthy they remove about 500 grainn of impure matter daily, when unhealthy some part of this impure matter is left in the blood. This brings on many diseases and symptoms—pain in the back, headache, nervousness, hot, dry skin, rheumatism, gout, gravel, disorders of the eye sight and hearing, dizziness, irregular heart, debility, drowsiness, dropsy, deposits in the urine, etc. But if you keep the filters right you will have no trouble with your kidneys.

Mrs. Joe Simpier, Cathrine St., Port Allegany, Pa., says: "For some time I have suffered wilh dull, nagging backaches and severe pains that were always present in the region of my kidenys. Constant headaches and dizzy spells caused me to feel tired and upon rising in the morning, I felt almost unable to begin the day's work. A friend hearing of my condition advised me to try Doan's Kidney Pills, and I did so. The effect of their use was wonderful. The backache vanished and the headaches and dizzy spells are now a thing of the past. It is with great pleasure that I recommend Doan's Kidney Pills to all suffering from troubles arising from inactive kidneys."

THE ONLY ISSUE.

The Philadelphia Inquirer very tritely remarks that as a matter of fact the only "issue" that Mr, Harman erects is that he is a Democrat and his opponent is a Republican.

There was never a time in Pennsylvania when this great Republican State could be induced to turn to the Democracy, all other things being equal. In the days of excitement, of suspicion, of hysteria, Republicans have issued a rebuke to the "organization." But when the Republican people themselves nominate candidates, when they know that their candidates are faultless, when they find their party united in behalf of good government, they never see any reason why a man of their choice should be repudiated merely because his opponent is a Democrat.

What rebukes are given at the polls are intended to purify. Who shall say that the Republican Party as well as its candidates, is not thoroughly in earnest?

Who shall dare to hold up the Republican administration at Harrisburg as anything but pure, capable, honest, sincere?

Both Governor Stuart and the Republican people have taken hold of the abuses of the past, as represented by the State Capitol looters, and have decreed that there shall be a thorough cleansing. The cleansing process is in operation. Today the government of Pennsylvania stands for all that is best in government. It is a model for other Commonwealths.

Prosperous, without debt, every penny accounted for, Pennsylvania proudly lifts her head and invites the most careful inspection.

That being the case, why are the Republicans expected to elect a Democrat, whose only issue is that he is a Democrat, to office?

It cannot be done. Now is the time to express confidence in the Republican party.

The Princess Elopes

(Copyright, 1905, Bobbs-Merrill Co.)

SYNOPSIS.

The American consul to Barscheit, a principality of Europe, tells how the reigning grand duke had tried to find a husband for his rebellious niece, the Princess Hildegarde, finally decreeing that she wed the Prince of Doppelkinn, an ugly old widower, ruler of the neighboring principality. Though he had been in the country for six months the American consul had never seen the princess. While horseback riding in the country 'ght overtakes him, and he seeks accommodation in a dilapidated old castle. In it he finds an old servitor and two women, the Princess Hildegarde, and a friend, the Hon. Betty Moore of England. They detain him to be a witness to a mock marriage of the Princess to Steinbock, a disgraced military officer, as a means of escaping the marriage with Prince Doppelkinn. Warrington, the American consul, is hidden behind the portiers when Steinbock arrives.

I heard the crackle of parchment. The certificate was being unfolded. (It occurred to me that while she was about it the princess might just as well have forged the rascal's name and wholly dispensed with his services. The whole affair struck me as being ineffective; nothing would come of it. If she tried to make the duke believe that she had married Steinbock, her uncle would probe the matter to the bottom, and in the end cover her with ridicule. But you can not tell a young woman anything, when she is a princess and in the habit of having her own way. It is remarkable how stupid clever women can be at times. The Honorable Betty understood, but her highness would not be convinced. Thus she suffered this needless affront. Pardon this parenthesis, but when one talks from behind a curtain the parenthesis is the only available thing.) There was silence. I saw Steinbock poise the pen, then scribble on the parchment. It was done. I stirred restlessly.

"There!" cried Steinbock. His voice did not lack a certain triumph. "And now for the duplicate!"

Her highness stuffed the document into the bosom of her dress. "There will be no duplicate." The frigidity of her tones would have congealed the blood of an ordinary rascal. But Steinbock was not ordinary.

"But suppose the duke comes to me for verification?" he reasoned.

"You will be on the other side of the frontier. Here are your thousand crowns."

The barb of her contempt penetrated even his thick epidermis. His smile hardened.

"I was once a gentleman; I did not always accept money for aiding in shady transactions."

"Neither your sentiments nor your opinions are required. Now, observe me carefully," continued her highness. "I shall give you 24 hours to cross the frontier in any direction you choose. If after that time you are found in Barscheit, I promise to hand you over to the police."

"It has been a great day," said the rascal, with a laugh. "A thousand crowns!"

I separated the portieres an inch. He stood at the side of the piano, upon which he leaned an elbow. He was certainly handsome, much sought after by women of a low class. The princess stood at Steinbock's left and the Honorable Betty at his right, erect, their faces expressing nothing, so forced was the respose.

"I never expected so great an honor. To wed a princess, when that princess is your highness! Faith, it is fine!"

"You may go at once," interrupted her highness, her voice rising a key. "Remember, you have only 24 hours between you and prison. You waste valuable time."

"What! you wish to be rid of me so soon? Why, this is the bridal night. One does not part with one's wife at this rate."

Leopold, the caretaker, made a warning gesture.

"Come, Leopold, I must have my jest," laughed Steinbock.

"Within certain bounds," returned the old man phlegmatically. "It is high time you were off. You are foolhardy to match your chances with justice. Prison stares you in the face."

"Bah! Do you believe it?"

"It is a positive fact," added the princess.

"But to leave like this has the pang of death!" Steinbock remonstrated. "What! shall I be off without having even kissed the bride?"

"The bargain is concluded on all sides; you have your thousand crowns."

"But not love's tribute. I must have that. It is worth a thousand crowns. Besides," with a perceptible change in his manner, "shall I forget the contempt with which you have always looked upon me, even in the old days were fair and prosperous? Scarcely! Opportunity is a thing that can not be permitted to pass thus lightly." Then I observed his nose wrinkle; he was sniffing. "Tobacco! I did not know that you smoked, Leopold."

"Be gone!" cried the old fellow, his hands opening and shutting.

"Presently!" With a laugh he sprang toward her highness, but Leopold was too quick for him.

There was a short struggle, and I saw the valiant old man reel, fall and strike his head on the stone of the hearth. He lay perfectly motionless. So unexpected was this scene to my eyes that for a time I was without any particular sense of movement. I stood like stone. With an evil laugh Steinbock sprang toward her highness again. Quick as light she snatched up my crop, which lay on the table, and struck the rascal full across the eyes, again and again and again, following him as he stepped backward. Her defense was magnificent. But, as fate determined to have it, Steinbock finally succeeded in wresting the stick from her grasp. He was wild with pain and chagrin. It was then I awoke to the fact that I was needed.

I rushed out, hot with anger. I caught Steinbock by the collar just in time to prevent his lips from touching her cheek. I flung him to the floor, and knelt upon his chest. I am ashamed to confess it, but I recollect slapping the fellow's face as he struggled under me.

"You scoundrel!" I cried, breathing hard.

"Kill him!" whispered her highness. She was furious; the blood of her marauding ancestors swept over her cheeks, and if ever I saw murder in a woman's eyes it was at that moment.

"Hush, Hildegarde, hush!" The English girl caught the princess in her arms and drew her back. "Don't let me hear you talk like that. It is all over."

"Get up," I said to Steinbock, as I set him free.

He crawled to his feet. He was very much disordered, and there were livid welts on his face. He shook himself, eyeing me evilly. There was murder in his eyes, too.

"Empty your pockets of those thousand crowns!"—peremptorily.

"I was certain that I smelled tobacco," he sneered. "It would seem that there are other bridegrooms than myself."

"Those crowns, or I'll break every bone in your body!" I balled my fists. Nothing would have pleased me better at that moment than to pummel the life out of him.

Slowly he drew out the purse. It was one of those limp silk affairs so much affected by our ancestors. He balanced it on his hand. Its ends bulged with gold and bank-notes. Before I was aware of his intentions, he swung one end of it in so deft a manner that it struck me squarely between the eyes. With a crash of glass he disappeared through the window. The blow dazed me only for a moment, and I was hot to be on his tracks. The Honorable Betty stopped me.

"He may shoot you!" she cried. "Don't go.!"

Although half through the window, I crawled back, brushing my sleeves. Something warm trickled down my nose.

"You have been cut!" exclaimed her highness.

"It is nothing. I beg of you to let me follow. It will be all over with that fellow at large."

"Not at all." Her highness' eyes sparkled wickedly. "He will make for the nearest frontier. He knows now that I shall not hesitate a moment to put his affairs in the hands of the police."

"He will boast of what he has done."

"Not till he has spent those thousand crowns." She crossed the room and knelt at the side of Leopold, dashing some water into his face. Presently he opened his eyes. "He is only stunned. Poor Leopold!"

I helped the old man to his feet, and he rubbed the back of his head grimly. He drew a revolver from his pocket.

"I had forgotten all about it," he said contritely. "Shall I follow him, your highness?"

"Let him go. It doesn't matter now. Betty, you were right, as you always are. I have played the part of a silly fool. I would have my own way in the matter. Well, I have this worthless paper. At least I can frighten the duke, and that is something."

"Oh, my dear, if only you would have listened to my advice!" the other girl said. There was deep discouragement in her tones. "I warned you so often that it would come to this end."

"Let us drop the matter entirely," said her highness.

I gazed admiringly at her—to see her sink suddenly into a chair and weep abandonedly! Leopold eyed her mournfully while the English girl rushed to her side and flung her arms around her soothingly.

"I am very unhappy," said the princess, lifting her head and shaking the tears from her eyes. "I am harassed on all sides; I am not allowed any will of my own. I wish I were a peasant!— Thank you, thank you! But for you that wretch would have kissed me." She held out her hand to me, and I bent to one knee as I kissed it. She was worthy to be the wife of the finest fellow in all the world. I was very sorry for her, and thought many uncomplimentary things of the duke.

"I shall not ask you to forget my weakness," she said.

"It is already forgotten, your highness."

Under such circumstances I met the Princess Hildegarde of Barscheit; and I never betrayed her confidence until this writing, when I have her express permission.

Of Hermann Steinbock I never saw anything more. Thus the only villain passes from the scene. As I have repeatedly remarked, doubtless to your weariness, this is not my story at all; but in parenthesis I may add that between the Honorable Betty Moore and myself there sprang up a friendship which later ripened into something infinitely stronger.

This, then, was the state of affairs when, one month later, Max Scharfenstein poked his handsome blond head over the frontier of Barscheit; cue (as the dramatist would say), enter hero.

"Struck Me Squarely Between the Eyes."

The right kind of a wife never harps upon her husband's misdeeds, still less does she remind him of his misfortunes. No woman should marry a man unless her love for him be of the fiber which hopeth all things, believeth all things, and is not easily provoked," says Home Chat. The right kind of wife helps a man when he falls an encourages him to try again, instead of railing at him for the stumble after he has risen to his feet.

"The average woman," said Grumbell, "has but one idea, and that's dress." "Huh!" snorted Marryat, "my wife usually has at least a dozen ideas, and they're dresses."—The Catholic Standard and Times.

Bowles—Surely no one questions that character covers a multitude of sins. Thomas—I think not; and one might truthfully add that it not infrequently exposes a great number of sinners.—Smart Set.

"I'm afraid to take fencing lessons, for 'tis such an exhausting exercise." "Not a bit of it. Who told wou so?" "Maizie is taking them, and she always is talking about how she feints so often while she's practicing."

A Young Composer.

Rachel, aged 12, wrote an composition on wild flowers in which she praised the arbutus, the liverwort, the spring beauty, the blood root, and all of the other blossoms of dell and dale. But she wrote on both sides of her sheet of paper, and when she asked her father, who was an editor, to publish her article, he called her attention to that fact.

"You've written on both sides of your paper," said he.

"Well," was the reply, "and don't you print on both sides of yours?"

ALL THINGS IN PROPORTION.

Invalid's Meal Evidently Had Not Increased Good Humor.

For many weeks the irritable merchant had been riveted to his bed by typhoid fever. Now he was convalescing. He clamored for something to eat, declaring that he was starving.

"To-morrow you may have something to eat," promised the doctor. The merchant realized that there would be a restraint to his appetite, yet he saw, in vision, a modest, steaming meal placed at his bedside.

"Here is your dinner," said the nurse next day, as she gave the glowering patient a spoonful of tapioca pudding, "and the doctor emphasizes that everything else you do must be in the same proportion."

Two hours later the nurse heard a frantic call from the bed chamber.

"Nurse," breathed the man heapily, "I want to do some reading, bring me a postage stamp."

HAVE CRAZE FOR FORMULA.

Smokers Follow Fashions in the Use of Tobacco.

"Make me up a package of tobacco according to the formula used by Edwin Booth," said the man with a southern accent. "That is the third man who has asked for that kind of tobacco to-day," said the dealer. "It is strange that people from remote parts of the country as well as New Yorkers make a fad of buying the same brand of tobacco that Booth smoked. And it isn't always the Booth mixture that they want. I have filed away the formulas for mixing the favorite tobacco of many famous persons. Smokers the country over have heard of this collection of recipes and one feature of every man's trip to New York is to try a pipeful of some big man's favorite tobacco. In most cases this special mixture is so strong that the nerves of the average smoker cannot stand it. He has to give up after a few pipefuls and go back to a popular mixture, but he has the satisfaction of having had the experience."—The New York Sun.

The "Mound City."

St. Louis rejoices in the sobriquet of Mound City from the fact that the original settlers found there many elevations which it is supposed were relics of that strange people who dwelt in the Ohio and Mississippi valleys and are known to modern times only as the Mound Builders. No adequate explanation has yet been found of their strange mode of leaving memorials of their existence. The limestone bluffs on which a part of St. Louis stands furnish a solid foundation for the business buildings.

Held Up.

"Stop!" shouted the man on the country road, holding up a warning hand. Muttering something about rural cops, the automobilist obeyed.

"Turn around and come back to town with me," said the stranger. "You were going at least 35 miles an hour."

"You're a constable, I suppose," said the automobilist, with a covert sneer, when they had reached the village.

"Me?" replied the passenger. "No, I'm a farmer and had to come into town when all the teams was busy. Nice growing weather? Thanks. Good-by."

Belling a Rat.

You have probably read or heard that the best way to rid a house of rats is to catch one and fasten a bell about its neck. A boy in Delaware tried the experiment two months ago. He was badly bitten in making the bell fast, but he turned the rat loose and expected the tinkling of that bell would have great results. It did have. In the first place, the rat who wore it was constantly on the move all night, and the tinkling bell kept the family awake, and in the next the sounds brought scores of new rats to the house. Instead of being afraid of the bell, they were charmed with the music. Had the boy tied a harmonica to another rat's tail, the rodents would have had a dance every night.

She Was Willing.

"Yes," says the husband, "I have consented to accept the nomination."

"I am so glad the party is beginning to recognize your merit," beams the wife.

"Now my dear," the husband continues, "you know that political affairs are not love feasts, by any means. You must expect to see me vilified and attacked in a scandalous manner. No doubt the opposition will try to dig up sensational rumors about me, and all that sort of thing, but you must not——"

"Well," she interrupts, "I am really glad of it. You have always been strangely silent about whether or not you ever were engaged to anyone before you met me."

The Way of the Child.

A small boy who had recently passed his fifth birthday was riding in a car with his mother, when they were asked the customary question: "How old is the boy?" After being told the correct age, which did not require a fare, the conductor passed on to the next person.

The boy sat quite still as if pondering over some question, and then, concluding that full information had not been given, called loudly to the conductor, then at the other end of the car: "And mother's 31!"

A Definition of Success.

How have the hypothetical scientists and the exponents of unbelief benefited themselves or humanity at large by sowing the seeds of doubt broadcast in the world? The real scientists do not fall in this category, for they are believers in the real sense of the word; they know too much, they have seen too many mysterious manifestations of the Divine creative power. Now, those who have disposed of the Bible and all evidences of inspiration, have written a great many books and some of them have won what the world at large lightly calls fame. According to the ordinary measures that are applied in such cases, they have been extremely successful, but real success means the benefit of humanity in some form or other. If no such benefits can be shown as the result of their labors, their success is not equal to that achieved by the direst poverty and the deepest ignorance. — Joel Chandler, in Uncle Remus' Magazine.

WHEN A "HUNCH" HELD GOOD.

Chinese Laundry Ticket Suggested a Bet on "Wing Ting."

Kay Spence, a well-known horseman of Mexico, Mo., won $1,000 at the Louisville, Ky., race meeting a short time ago as the result of a "hunch." Mr. Spence has a large breeding stable of "runners" near Mexico, and attends all the big racing events in the country. Not long since he was in Louisville and entered the betting ring to see what odds were being offered on the various entries. He found that Joaquin was the favorite at even money, and pulled his wallet from his pocket, intending to bet on that horse. His attention was attracted by something that fell from his wallet to the ground, and he stooped and picked it up. It was a Chinese laundry ticket. He looked at the "books" again and found that there was an entry with a Chinese name, Wing Ting, at ten to one. That settled it, for he considered he had received a "hunch" that could not be overlooked. Wing Ting won handily. Needless to say, those who backed the favorite considered Spence the seventh son of the seventh son.—Kansas City Star.

"BOO-HOO"

Shouts a Spanked Baby.

A Doctor of Divinity, now Editor of a well-known Religious paper, has written regarding the controversy between Collier's Weekly and the Religious Press of the Country and others, including ourselves. Also regarding suits for libel brought by Collier's against us for commenting upon its methods.

These are his sentiments, with some very emphatic words left out.

"The religious Press owes you a debt of gratitude for your courage in showing up Collier's Weekly as the "Yell-Oh Man." Would you care to use the inclosed article on the "Boo Hoo Baby" as the "Yell-Oh Man's successor?"

"A contemporary remarks that Collier's has finally run against a solid hickory "Post" and been damaged in its own estimation to the tune of $750,000.00."

"Here is a publication which has, in utmost disregard of the facts, spread broadcast damaging statements about the Religious Press and others and has suffered those false statements to go uncontradicted until, not satisfied after finding the Religious Press too quiet, and peaceful, to resent the insults, it makes the mistake of wandering into fresh field and butts its rattled head against this Post and all the World laughs. Even Christians smile, as the Post suddenly turns and gives it back a dose of its own medicine."

"It is a mistake to say all the World laughs. No cheery laugh comes from Collier's, but it cries and boo hoos like a spanked baby and wants $750,000.00 to soothe its tender, lacerated feelings."

"Thank Heaven it has at last struck a man with "back bone" enough to call a spade a "spade" and who believes in telling the whole truth without fear or favor."

Perhaps Collier's with its "utmost disregard for the facts," may say no such letter exists. Nevertheless it is on file in our office and is only one of a mass of letters and other data, newspaper comments, etc., denouncing the "yellow" methods of Collier's. This volume is so large that a man could not well go thru it under half a day's steady work. The letters come from various parts of America.

Usually a private controversy is not interesting to the public, but this is a public controversy.

Collier's has been using the "yellow" methods to attract attention to itself, but, jumping in the air, cracking heels together and yelling "Look at me" wouldn't suffice, so it started out on a "Holier Than Thou" attack on the Religious Press and on medicine.

We leave it to the public now, as we did when we first resented Collier's attacks, to say whether, in a craving for sensation and circulation, its attacks do not amount to a systematic mercenary hounding. We likewise leave it to the public to say whether Collier's, by its own policy and methods, has not made itself more ridiculous than any comment of ours could make it.

Does Collier's expect to regain any self-inflicted loss of prestige by demonstrating thru suits for damages, that it can be more artful in evading liability for libels than the humble but resentful victims of its defamation, or does it hope for starting a campaign of libel suits to silence the popular indignation, reproach and resentment which it has aroused.

Collier's can not dodge this public controversy by private law suits. It can not postpone the public judgment against it. That great jury, the Public, will hardly blame us for not waiting until we get a petit jury in a court room, before denouncing this prodigal detractor of institutions founded and fostered either by individuals or by the public, itself.

No announcements during our entire business career were ever made claiming "medicinal effects" for either Postum or Grape-Nuts. Medicinal effects are results obtained from the use of medicines.

Thousands of visitors go thru our entire works each month and see for themselves that Grape-Nuts contains absolutely nothing but wheat, barley and a little salt; Postum absolutely nothing but wheat and about ten per cent of New Orleans Molasses. The art of preparing these simple elements in a scientific manner to obtain the best food value and flavor, required some work and experience to acquire.

Now, when any publication goes far enough out of its way to attack us because our advertising is "medical," it simply offers a remarkable exhibition of ignorance or worse.

We do claim physiological or bodily results of favorable character following the adoption of our suggestions regarding the discontinuance of coffee and foods which may not be keeping the individual in good health. We have no advice to offer the perfectly healthful person. His or her health is evidence in itself that the beverages and foods used exactly fit that person. Therefore, why change?

But to the man or woman who is ailing, we have something to say as a result of an unusually wide experience in food and the result of proper feeding.

In the palpably ignorant attack on us in Collier's, appeared this statement,—"One widely circulated paragraph labors to induce the impression that Grape-Nuts will obviate the necessity of an operation in appendicitis. This is lying and potentially deadly lying."

In reply to this exhibition of—well let the reader name it, the Postum Co., says:

Let it be understood that appendicitis results from long continued disturbance in the intestines, caused primarily by undigested starchy food, such as white bread, potatoes, rice, partly cooked cereals and such.

Starchy food is not digested in the upper stomach but passes on into the duodenum, or lower stomach and intestines, where, in a healthy individual, the transformation of the starch into a form of sugar is completed and then the food absorbed by the blood.

But if the powers of digestion are weakened, a part of the starchy food will lie in the warmth and moisture of the body and decay, generating gases and irritating the mucous surfaces until under such conditions the whole lower part of the alimentary canal, including the colon and the appendix, becomes involved. Disease sets up and at times takes the form known as appendicitis.

When the symptoms of the trouble make their appearance, would it not be good, practical, common sense, to discontinue the starchy food which is causing the trouble and take a food in which the starch has been transformed into a form of sugar in the process of manufacture?

This is identically the same form of sugar found in the human body after starch has been perfectly digested.

Now, human food is made up very largely of starch and is required by the body for energy and warmth. Naturally, therefore, its use should be continued, if possible, and for the reasons given above it is made possible in the manufacture of Grape-Nuts.

In connection with this change of food to bring relief from physical disturbances, we have suggested washing out the intestines to get rid of the immediate cause of the disturbance.

Naturally, there are cases where the disease has lain dormant and the abuse continued too long, until apparently only the knife will avail. But it is a well-established fact among the best physicians who are acquainted with the details above recited, that preventative measures are far and away the best.

Are we to be condemned for suggesting a way to prevent disease by following natural methods and for perfecting a food that contains no "medicine" and produces no "medicinal effects" but which has guided literally thousands of persons from sickness to health? We have received during the years past upwards of 25,000 letters from people who have been either helped or made entirely well by following our suggestions, and they are simple.

If coffee disagrees and causes any of the ailments common to some coffee users quit it and take on Postum.

If white bread, potatoes, rice and other starch foods make trouble, quit and use Grape-Nuts food which is largely predigested and will digest, nourish and strengthen, when other forms of food do not. It's just plain old common sense.

"There's a Reason for Postum and Grape-Nuts.

PLAN OF COW STABLE.

Building Which Will Prove Convenient and Sanitary.

The ground plan of a cow stable shown herewith was suggested to a farmer who desired to build a barn upon the side of the hill. The floor plan contemplates two rows of cows instead of one in the south, exposed end, of the building, and a root cellar, a cool room and dairy room separated by a hallway from the cow stable, in the back portion of the building and therefore in the bank. The plan further contemplates the placing of the icehouse above the cool room, and the root cellar so that, without moving the ice, a cool room adjacent to the dairy room can be provided, all under one roof. A driveway into the barn on the second floor is indicated on the uphill side, which would permit roots to be unloaded through the floor into the root cellar, hay and grain to be put into the barn above, and the ice into the ice-chamber, or the ice can be filled in from the outside if that is more desirable. With the icehouse over the cool room and root cellar a feed room can be provided over the dairy room, if that is desired. With such a plan the barn on the north end and on the east side would be entirely below the ground for the first story to the south of the driveway. The cow stable would be above ground so as to have easy access and abundance of light, and the hallway and dairy room would be ground far enough to give an abundance of light. The whole structure as planned would have dimensions 32 feet wide by 70 feet long, the root cellar being 13 by 22 inside. If less number of cows are desired the building may be proportionately shortened.

If it is desired to have all compartments named single story and the ice on the ground floor, the Rural New Yorker suggests that it might be better to adopt the same general floor plan, but to widen the back end of the building so as to drop the icehouse in between the dairy room and cool room and the root cellar so that one side of the icehouse could be brought against the cool room, and it would probably be better to make the floor of the dairy room and cool room far enough below the bottom of the icehouse so that the drainage from the icehouse and cold air from it can be taken into the cool room. The wall of the root cellar may be made common to the stable and the cellar and this portion of the wall need not be hollow, as the necessary warmth would be provided for by contact with the stable, so the wall between the root cellar and the cool room need not be hollow, but if the icehouse is dropped down so as to stand between the root cellar and the cool room the icehouse wall would have to be hollow all around except on the side adjacent to the cool room, which would need to be solid for its cooling effect on the room.

TREATMENT OF CALF SCOURS.

Prof. R. S. Shaw Gives His Remedy for the Ailment.

There are some interesting things in connection with that, for instance, with calf scours. Those side issues are being worked out very carefully. I might throw out this suggestion that if you have trouble of that kind with calves, one of the best things we have used and are using almost altogether with which to suppress outbreaks of calf scours, is a mixture of tincture of rhubarb, camphor and oplate, equal parts in hot water, about a teaspoonful. One of the most interesting recoveries I have ever seen was about three weeks ago in the case of a calf that scoured and was so near death the feet were stretched out cold and stiff, and there was every symptom of death. The calf was treated in that way twice, then was fed with raw eggs and milk occasionally and he recovered. He was the sickest calf I ever saw, so sick his hair all came off after a week or ten days, but he is one of the best feeders we have in the bunch to-day.

AN ICE HOUSE FOR FARM.

When Planning It, Be Sure and Don't Get It Too Small.

The farmer in planning his ice house should not make the mistake in building too small, especially if he lives in my locality, excepting the extreme northern states. It is not so much a question of how much ice he needs for family use, but how much is going to waste and whether it will last through the hot season until cool weather arrives again. A large block of ice will last much longer relatively than one somewhat smaller. Fifteen feet square on the outside should be about the size to build an ice house for the farm. Allowing 1½ feet for the space between the two walls and the space between the inner wall and the ice, this will give a block of ice 12 feet square, and if it is 12 feet high it will contain theoretically 52 tons, but in practice not more than 40 to 45 tons, according to how closely it is laid. The loss of ice from melting is very great in all ordinary ice houses, and especially is this true where it is taken out daily in such small pieces as is usually the case.

The house should be built above ground and if it can be placed where it will be protected from the noonday sun by shade trees, it will be found to be of advantage, says the Orange Judd Farmer. A low cost ice house can be built with ordinary lumber and by any one handy with tools. The essentials to be observed are: First, drainage below and ventilation above; second, a perfectly tight foundation. Warm air rises and if a current of warm air gets started through the ice it will cause quick melting. Third, a reasonably double wall surrounding the ice on sides and top.

The foundation should be made of brick, concrete or stone masonry, and in which sills 2x8 should be bedded in cement. On this erect 2x8 studding 24 inches apart. On the inside for the inner wall ½-inch sheathing material may be used of almost any kind of lumber. Some durable wood is to be preferred, as these boards are apt to decay quickly. For the outside good novelty siding may be used. It should be free from knotholes and cracks. The rafters should be 2x4, with sheathing on the underside. It is important to have air space between shingles and sheathing beneath the rafters, as everyone knows how hot it gets under a barn roof in summer. The space between the two walls on the four sides may be left empty if the outer inclosure is very tight, as a dead air space is one of the best nonconductors. But it will not be a dead air space if there are holes or cracks in the siding, but the air will circulate and prove of little value as a nonconductor.

If the ground on which the house is situated is of a gravelly, porous nature, no provision need be made for drainage, as the water will be absorbed as fast as the ice melts. Otherwise, the floor should be graded off, so as to slope to one point, where surplus noted may be taken off by means of a trapped outlet pipe to exclude all air while allowing the water to escape.

The opening of the house should begin about four feet from the ground and extend upward nearly to the top of the roof. The outer may be made in two or three sections, and the inner inclosure supplied by boards crosswise, put in as the house is filled and taken out as it is emptied. It is a mistake to provide too much ventilation. For an ordinary house 1-foot square openings at each end under the apex of the roof are sufficient, and it would be of advantage to provide for closing these on warm days.

In filling the house never lay the ice on the ground. The warmth of the earth will melt the ice continuously. The cakes of ice should be laid on old rails or any kind of timber. Straw or cornstalks are not good, as they crush tightly to the earth, and get wet, and water is a good conductor of heat.

The ice on the pond should be worked out carefully and the blocks made of uniform dimensions. In laying, the joints should be broken and a space of 8 to 12 inches should be left between the ice and the wall. This may be filled with straw, the same material being used to cover over the top of the ice after the house is filled. The house should be painted white.

An ice house 15 feet square and 12 high will require approximately the following amounts of lumber: 26 pieces 2 by 8 inches by 12 feet, eight pieces 2 by 8 inches by 15 feet, 14 pieces 2 by 6 inches by 10 feet, 720 feet sheathing, 850 feet siding, 900 feet shingles. It will cost at present prices of lumber about $80, independent of the foundation.

RHEUMATISM RECIPE

PREPARE SIMPLE HOME-MADE MIXTURE YOURSELF.

Buy the Ingredients from Any Druggist in Your Town and Shake Them in a Bottle to Mix This.

A well-known authority on Rheumatism gives the readers of a large New York daily paper the following valuable, yet simple and harmless prescription, which any one can easily prepare at home:

Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces.

Mix by shaking well in a bottle, and take a teaspoonful after each meal and at bedtime.

He states that the ingredients can be obtained from any good prescription pharmacy at small cost, and, being a vegetable extraction, are harmless to take.

This pleasant mixture, if taken regularly for a few days, is said to overcome almost any case of Rheumatism. The pain and swelling, if any, diminishes with each dose, until permanent results are obtained, and without injuring the stomach. While there are many so-called Rheumatism remedies, patent medicines, etc., some of which do give relief, few really give permanent results, and the above will, no doubt, be greatly appreciated by many sufferers here at this time.

Inquiry at the drug stores of even the small towns elicits the information that these drugs are harmless and can be bought separately, or the druggists will mix the prescription if asked to.

A REAL "HOSS" RACE.

Country Fair the Place to See It at Its Best.

If you would see a horse strapped, booted, braced and geared to the limit, you must seek such a track as you see at the old-time country fair. Here comes an awkward flea-bitten gray which never went under 2:50 in his life. He is hobbled and checked and goggled, and hitched up sidewise, lengthwise and crosswise until there is more harness than horse. You wonder how his driver ever got him into this rigging, and how he will get him out again without cutting him free with a jackknife. A farmer with a gray beard and twinkling eye observes to his neighbor:

"Last time John Martin had that plug out on the road I told him he had the old cripple overloaded with fust-aids-to-the-injured. Them straps that was cal'lated to hoist up his knees must ha' pulled too tight and the critter was yanked clean off the ground. What John was gettin' ready for was a race for flyin' machines, not a hoss trot."—From "The Country Fair," by David Lansing, in Outing.

BABY WASTED TO SKELETON.

In Torments with Terrible Sores on Face and Body—Tore at Flesh—Cured by Cuticura.

"My little son, when about a year and a half old began to have sores come out on his face. They began to come on his arms, then on other parts of his body, and then one came on his chest, worse than the others. At the end of about a year and a half of suffering he grew so bad I had to tie his hands in cloths at night to keep him from scratching the sores and tearing the flesh. He got to be a mere skeleton and was hardly able to walk. I sent to the drug store and got a cake of Cuticura Soap and a box of Cuticura Ointment, and at the end of about two months the sores were all well. He has never had any sores of any kind since, and only for the Cuticura Remedies my precious child would have died from these terrible sores. I used only one cake of Soap and about three boxes of Ointment. Mrs. Egbert Sheldon, R. F. D. No. 1, Woodville, Conn., April 22, 1905."

Man Whose Memory Was Bad.

For more than an hour a witness for the defense had dodged questions. His faulty memory was particularly exasperating for the counsel for the plaintiff, who was seeking to recall to the witness' recollection an event of four of five years previous. Eventually the man remembered "something about it."

"Ah," continued the lawyer for the plaintiff, "what dd you think of it at the time?"

"Really," said the witness, speaking before the lawyer for the defense had time to interpose objection, "it was so long ago I can't recall exactly what I thought of it."

"Well," shouted the cross-examiner, excitedly, "if you can't recall, tell us what you think now you thought then."

Excusable.

"I suppose," remarked the coy widow, "that you are an advocate of early marriages?"

"Oh, yes, I am," replied the scanty haired bachelor.

"Then," continued the c. w., "why is it you are still a bachelor?"

"That's quite another matter," answered the Bachelor. "The only marriages I believe in are early ones, because there is some excuse for youthful follies."—Chicago News.

SEEK TO WIN SOLDIERS.

Russian Girls Risk Life for the Cause of Liberty.

"When the university opened last autumn I started to work again among the soldiers," said the young woman. "As you know, the revolutionists are at present working very hard to win over the army, and one of the means is to talk freedom directly to the soldiers. For this girls have been found to be more effective than men; the young peasant soldiers are more willing to listen to girls, and are far readier to protect them from arrest. So all over Russia hundreds and hundreds of girls are now nightly meeting with groups of soldiers, in working men's homes and in barracks. To go into barracks and talk revolution to the soldiers, hardly anything is so dangerous—for the girl caught is tried by court-martial and in a day or two is executed.—From Leroy Scott's Interview with a Russian Woman, in Everybody's.

GIVING HIM A CHANCE.

Surely Time for Hubby to Do a Lively Sidestep.

Mrs. Wilson's husband was often obliged to go to New York on business, and frequently did not reach his home until the arrival of the midnight train. Mrs. Wilson had been in the habit of sleeping peacefully at these times without fear, but a number of burglaries in the neighborhood during one of her husband's trips to New York had disturbed her calm.

On the night of his return Mr. Wilson was stealing carefully up the front stairs, as was his wont on such occasions, so that his wife would not be wakened, when he heard her voice, high and strained:

"I don't know whether you are my husband or a burglar," came the excited tones, "but I am going to be on the safe side and shoot, so if you are Henry you'd better get out of the way."—Youth's Companion.

A Break in the Ceremony.

Little Tom was two years old and talking before his proud parents took him to be christened. Though limited, his vocabulary included one or two choice words picked up from his father. Of course, he looked like a perfect little cherub on the eventful day, with his wide blue eyes and shining curls and mother had got him up in great shape for the ceremony. At the most impressive point Tom turned to his father and exclaimed in aggravated tones: "Why, damn it, he wet my head!"

What's in a Name?

"Old Amy, you know, who is famous for being arrested, has been sent to jail again. But as she weighs nearly 300 pounds and is a good fighter, it took nearly all the reserve force to get her in the wagon."

"Then the magistrate who sent her to jail ought to be arrested, too."

"Why so?"

"Didn't he commit big Amy?"—Baltimore American.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

The canvasser for a cyclopedia came to the home of a colonel, whose record he had carefully studied before his visit. The colonel was especially proud of some of his sons, so the canvasser began with:

"Those are very fine boys of yours, colonel."

"They are," replied the colonel.

"I reckon you are ready to buy anything those boys want?"

"I am so," said the father of the fine boys.

"Well, then, let me sell you this cyclopedia. There's nothing will do your sons so much good."

But the colonel looked at him aghast. "Why, them lads of mine don't need any cyclopedia. They ride mules!"

Cats as Plague Preventive.

An Italian correspondent of the North China Daily News writes: "The newspapers have latterly been full of all sorts of suggestions for the stamping out of plague. For instance, never kill rats; if you do the fatal rat flea may be driven to feed on you. Also, compel each householder to keep cats. In fact, let the cult of the cat as it prevailed in ancient Egypt be revived in India. Plenty of cats, no rats."

BACKACHE AND DESPONDENCY

MISS LENA NAGEL

Are both symptoms of organic derangement, and nature's warning to women of a trouble which will sooner or later declare itself.

How often do we hear women say, "It seems as though my back would break." Yet they continue to drag along and suffer with aches in the small of the back, pain low down in the side, dragging sensations, nervousness and no ambition.

They do not realize that the back is the main-spring of woman's organism and quickly indicates by aching a diseased condition of the feminine organs or kidneys, and that aches and pains will continue until the cause is removed.

made from native roots and herbs has been for many years the most successful remedy in such cases. No other medicine has such a record of cures of feminine ills.

Miss Lena Nagel, of 117 Morgan St., Buffalo, N. Y., writes:— "I was completely worn out and on the verge of nervous prostration. My back ached all the time. I had dreadful periods of pain, was subject to fits of crying and extreme nervousness, and was always weak and tired. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound completely cured me."

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound cures Female Complaints, such as Backache, Falling and Displacements, and all Organic Diseases. Dissolves and expels Tumors at an early stage. It strengthens and tones the Stomach. Cures Headache and Indigestion and invigorates the whole feminine system.

BLUE BELL.

FIRST FORK.

The first snow storm of the season came on Sunday afternoon, and it looked pretty bad to those who hadn't got their winter's fire wood up yet.

Clarence E. Logue captured the first bear of the season, for this section, on Friday. Caught him in a trap in Logue Run. He was probably a two year old, but was good for $20 in U. S. money.

The jurymen from this part of the county all got home safe and only a few of them had been in jail.

Tony Mancuso and his gang of section men, among whom were Mac. Logue and Ralph Swank, came near going to "Kingdom Come" on Thursday morning. They pulled out on their hand car right behind the morning passenger train and did not notice a fast freight following until it was almost onto them. They only had time to jump, and the hand car was struck, and badly smashed, as well as their dinner buckets, etc.

Chas. Counsel, of Sinnamahoning, came up on Saturday and took a "snap shot" at the bear, and stayed over Sunday, intending to go out and take a shot at one in his native wilds.

The bears have sprung Fred Caldwell's trap several times, but he hasn't caught any yet.

In my last communication you made me say, the "hot weather had hindered fall seeding." We did not see the hot weather, but wrote about "wet weather" which we had in plenty.

Howard Moat, of Driftwood, was visiting his sister, Mrs. Jesse Logue, over Sunday.

M. J. Logue is getting shingles sawed at Brownlee's mill at Costello to shingle his house.

Our schools are closed this week on account of Institute.

PRIZE ESSAY.

The Settlement of Jamestown and the Thirteen Original Colonies.

Jamestown, the first English town permanently settled in the New World, was founded in 1607. There the first Americn Legislative Assembly met in 1619. Negro slaves were introduced the same year. The cultivation of tobacco built up commerce and largely increased the population but did not favor the growth of towns.

Now let us inquire something about the character of the men who planted this settlement. They were men poorly adapted to indure the hardships of life in a new country. The settlers—about one hundred in number—were mostly men of gentle birth, unused to labor. They had no families and came here in search of wealth and adventure. The climate was unhealthful and before the first autumn, half their number including Gosnold, their leader, had perished. Then came romantic John Smith, and saved the colony from ruin. He taught the men how to swing an ax, and declared that those who would not work must not eat. He taught them that industry and self-reliance are the surest guarantees to fortune Many interesting things are told of John Smith in connection with Jamestown. To tell all of these would fill a large book. History loves to tell us that one time he was captured by the Indians and only saved from death by the pleadings of a brave little Indian girl named Pocahontas. This girl afterward did much for the colony and was later married to one of the colonist, John Rolfe. Many of the leading families of Virginia have been proud to say that the blood of Pocahontas coursed through their veins. If you were to take a trip up the James river now all you would see of the settlement of Jamestown would be the ruins of the old church. The crumbling tower, with the arched doorways, is almost hidden by the schrubbery which surrounds it. And this with a few weather beaten tombstones is all thatremains of the first permanent English settlement in America.

Henry Hudson in 1609, sailed up the river which bears his name. He was an Englishman but was sailing under the Dutch flag, so the Dutch took possession of the country and called it New Netherlands. On Manhatten Island they founded the city of New Amsterdam. England and France were both jealous of the colony, and in 1664 England took possession of it and named it New York in honor of James Duke of York.

The Dutch first claimed possession of what is now New Jersey. The English Duke of York seized the country and gave it to two of his friends, Lord Berkley, and Sir George Carteret, naming the province from the British Isle of Jersey. A company then bought the land, granting to the settlers most of the priviliges of self-government. In 1702 the Quaker proprietors surrendered their rights to the English and New Jersey became a royal colony until the Revolution.

Leaving these settlements in the south let us go up the coast as far asCape Cod Bay. Here on a stormy day in Autumn 1620 a band of Pilgrims landed. The little band of one hundred and two, men, women and children had come over in the Mayflower, in search of a place where they could worship God as they pleased. They were rugged, hearty class of people well suited this wild country they had come to subdue. Nevertheless they suffered much during that first winter and half of the little band perished either from cold or starvation. Yet when spring comes and the Mayflower is ready to sail for England not one of the Pilgrims thinks of returning with her. They were rewarded for their perseverance and hard work for they left us a colony, which in after years became one of the noblest states of this grand Republic, Massachusetts. Massachusetts was first of the colonies in which her people assembled in town-meeting and established government for the people and public schools for the children.

New Hampshire originally formed part of the Maine or the Mainland, English colonists settled Dover and Portsmouth. Emigrants from Massachussets and Scotch-Irish later founded the towns of Exeter and Londonderry. The Scotch-Irish set up the manufacture of linen.

Connecticut was settled chiefly by emigrants from Eastern Massachusetts and from England. It was the first colony in America to establish a written constitution of government—one which gave the right of voting to every citizen.

The colony of Maryland was planted by Lord Baltimore an English Catholic. He was the first in America to establish feedom of worship for all Christians. The peace of the colony was broken by a civil war, and some of Lord Baltimore's ememies withdrew the government and forbade the exercise of Catholic religion. Lord Baltimore succeeded after a time in regaining his power and again granted freedom of worship.

Rhode Island was bought by Roger Williams and his friends from the Indians for forty fathoms of white wampum, twenty hoes and ten coats. Roger Williams was an exiled minister from Massachusetts. He was the first to establish entire religious freedom in this country. This principle now forms a part of our Constitution.

Delaware, settled by the Swedes as New Sweden, was taken by the Dutch and later by the English, who sold it to William Penn. He governed it as a part of Pennsylvania. When it became independent it took the name of Delaware. After the revolution it was the first state to adopt the constitution of the United States.

Carolina, which was later divided into North and South Carolina, was settled by emigrants from Virginia, by English and also Hugonots o French Protestants. North Carolina engaged in the manufacture of tar pitch and turpentine; South Carolina began the culture of rice and indigo, both of which proved very profitable.

William Penn founded the colony of Pennsylvania, which was named after his father. He gave the people the right to take part in making the laws, and all persons believing in God were protected in their religion. He made a treaty of peace with the Indians which was sacredly kept.

Georgia, the last of the thirteen colonies, and the richest in its natural advantages was settled by English emigrants brought over by General Oglethrope, as a work of charity. Slavery and the importation of spirit-liquors was at first forbidden but later both were allowed.
